

Uses

ID	1,076
Crop ID	Showy Milkweed
Part	Root
Use Category	Medicinal
Notes	The root is either chewed when fresh, or dried, ground into a powder then boiled, and used in the treatment of stomach ache. A decoction of the roots has been used in small doses to treat venereal diseases and also to treat coughs, especially from TB. A poultice of the mashed roots has been applied to rheumatic joints. Some caution should be employed when using the root since there is a report that it can be poisonous in large quantities
Metadata ID	2,337